

Financial Insights

from Quinn+Cardy Wealth Management of BMO Nesbitt Burns

Is Bitcoin the Next Gold?

As bitcoin continues to hit record highs, it has garnered much attention and fuelled an ongoing debate: Is bitcoin the next gold?

The current economic environment has helped to support bitcoin as an alternative asset in the search for safety. Today, central banks continue to push the limits of monetary policy by expanding their balance sheets, while government stimulus spending has been unprecedented, increasing debt to levels not seen before. As a result, some investors have turned to bitcoin when looking for a store of value — to act as a hedge against uncertainty and the potential for currency depreciation or inflation.

Gold — and Bitcoin? — As a Store of Value

Traditionally, gold has been considered the preeminent safe-haven asset. Its qualities make it a recognized store of value: it is durable, fungible, divisible, portable and scarce. Proponents of bitcoin would argue that it, too, possesses these qualities. While other precious metals, like platinum, may also have these characteristics, what distinguishes gold — and now increasingly, bitcoin — is the collective belief in its shared value.

Bitcoin: The Move to Mainstream

We’ve seen an increasing acceptance of bitcoin over recent years, perhaps partially driven by its rise in value. Many high-profile institutional investors and companies now hold and accept bitcoin, which has helped increase its utility. As digital payment systems have become more mainstream, even governments and central banks have begun to adopt, accept and develop digital currencies. Bitcoin is one of hundreds of cryptocurrencies that exist today. While it is likely that cryptocurrencies are not going away any time soon, there are reasons to exercise caution when considering bitcoin as an alternative asset. Here are three risks:

Unclear Valuation — There is considerable debate over what is the fair value of bitcoin, since it is simply the product of open-source software. Some argue that bitcoin lacks an intrinsic value when compared to other assets: stocks represent companies that produce goods and services with tangible value. Even gold’s physical properties make it useful outside of being a safe-haven asset, such as utility in jewellery or electronics. Proponents of bitcoin would argue that its fixed limited supply, decentralized and transparent nature, and growing acceptance by stakeholders has given it relevance as a store of value.

Significant Volatility — Since bitcoin’s inception in 2009 it has been subject to unpredictable and drastic price swings, perhaps a consequence of being a relatively new asset. In January alone, the price dropped by almost 20 percent on two occasions. Some note that gold experienced similar volatility in the 1970s as it became a trusted store of value; prices appreciated by almost 2,300 percent in that decade.¹

Security Concerns — Like many things of value, bitcoin has been targeted by unscrupulous individuals. Platforms that buy and sell bitcoin are often unregulated. Bitcoin transactions can be subject to fraud and theft, perhaps facilitated by the anonymity of the digital world. In 2014, the world’s leading bitcoin exchange was hit by a cyberattack. Customers had a significant amount of bitcoin stolen without recourse and the exchange filed for bankruptcy. Today, the controversial cryptocurrency Tether is under investigation for potentially manipulating the price of bitcoin.

For now, the risks are likely to challenge bitcoin’s viability as a safe-haven asset. However, the world continues to change and cryptocurrencies are gaining increasing relevance. Will bitcoin become the gold of our future?

1. forbes.com/sites/greatspeculations/2019/07/29/gold-prices-50-year-price-analysis-and-production-demand-dynamics/

Quinn+Cardy Wealth Management of BMO Nesbitt Burns

1 First Canadian Place
38th Floor, P.O. Box 150
Toronto, Ontario M5X 1H3

Toll Free: 1-800-263-2286
Fax: 416-359-5346
www.quinnccardy.com

This publication is for informational purposes only and is not and should not be construed as professional advice to any individual. Individuals should contact their BMO representative for professional advice regarding their personal circumstances and/or financial position. The publication was produced by J. Hirasawa & Associates, an independent third party for the individual Investment Advisor noted. Opinions, estimates and projections contained herein are those of the author as of the date hereof and are subject to change without notice and may not reflect those of BMO Wealth Management. BMO Wealth Management and the publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss arising from the use of this report or its contents. The information contained in this publication is based on material believed to be reliable, but BMO Wealth Management cannot guarantee the information is accurate or complete. The comments included in this publication are not intended to be a definitive analysis of tax applicability or trust and estates law. The comments contained herein are general in nature and professional advice regarding an individual’s particular tax position should be obtained in respect of any person’s specific circumstances. All rights are reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced in any form, or referred to in any other publication, without the express written permission of the publishers. Insurance services and products are offered through BMO Estate Insurance Advisory Services Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc. BMO Wealth Management is the brand name for a business group consisting of Bank of Montreal and certain of its affiliates in providing wealth management products and services. Not all products and services are offered by all legal entities within BMO Wealth Management. ©“BMO (M-bar roundel symbol)” is a registered trade-mark of Bank of Montreal, used under licence. BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc. provides comprehensive investment services and is a wholly owned subsidiary of Bank of Montreal. If you are already a client of BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc., please contact your Investment Advisor for more information. “Nesbitt Burns” is a registered trade-mark of BMO Nesbitt Burns Inc. All rights are reserved.